Led by a former Marine named Jack, the group includes a doctor, a teacher, a farmer, and a mechanic. They have scavenged for supplies, built a makeshift shelter, and established a system of patrols to keep the undead at bay. But as the days and weeks turn into months, they begin to realize that the greatest threat to their survival may not be the zombies, but each other.

As tensions rise within the group, Jack's leadership is put to the test. He must find a way to keep his people united, even as they face the horrors of the post-apocalyptic world. But with each passing day, the darkness seems to grow stronger, and the hope of a brighter future seems to dwindle.
