One day, Kenny was driving down the street when he saw a group of children playing in a pile of trash. Kenny was shocked! He stopped his truck and got out to talk to the children.

"What are you ng playing in the trash?" Kenny asked.

"We're playing in the trash because it's fun," one of the children said.

"But trash is dirty," Kenny said. "It can make you sick."

"We don't care," another child said. "We like playing in the trash."

Kenny sighed. He knew that he had to do something to convince the children that playing in the trash was not a good idea.

"I have an idea," Kenny said. "I'm going to take you on a tour of my garbage truck. I'll show you how I keep my town clean."

The children were excited to go on a tour of Kenny's garbage truck. Kenny showed them how he uses a big vacuum to suck up trash. He also showed them how he sorts the trash so that it can be recycled or composted.

The children were amazed by Kenny's garbage truck. They had never seen anything like it before.

"This is so cool!" one of the children said.

"I didn't know that garbage trucks were so important," another child said.

Kenny smiled. He was glad that he could teach the children about the importance of cleanliness.

"I'm glad you enjoyed the tour," Kenny said. "I hope you'll remember what you learned today and that you'll always keep your town clean."

The children nodded their heads. They promised Kenny that they would never play in the trash again.

Kenny was proud of the children for making a promise to keep their town clean. He knew that they would be a big help in keeping his town beautiful for years to come.
