A Tapestry of Musical Traditions

The musical tapestry of Prague began to be woven centuries ago. In the Middle Ages, the city was a major center for liturgical music, with composers such as Jan Dismas Zelenka and Josef Mysliveček leaving their mark on the development of sacred music. During the Renaissance and Baroque periods, Prague became a hub for opera and orchestral music, with the premiere of Mozart's opera Don Giovanni taking place in the city in 1787.
