'Play Birdie' is a beautifully written and thought-provoking book that explores our relationship with nature through the lens of birds. Karel's love of birds is evident on every page, and she weaves together personal stories, scientific research, and lyrical prose to create a compelling narrative that will resonate with readers of all ages.

The book is divided into four sections, each of which focuses on a different aspect of the human-avian connection. The first section, "Love," explores the ways in which birds can bring joy and companionship into our lives. The second section, "Loss," examines the grief that we experience when we lose a loved one, whether it be a human or a bird. The third section, "Family," celebrates the bonds that we form with our families, both human and avian. And the fourth section, "Hope," reminds us that even in the darkest of times, there is always hope for redemption and healing.

Karel's writing is both personal and universal, and she has a gift for finding the extraordinary in the ordinary. Whether she is describing the beauty of a bird in flight or the pain of losing a loved one, she does so with grace and eloquence. 'Play Birdie' is a book that will stay with you long after you finish it, and it is sure to inspire you to appreciate the beauty of the natural world and the importance of our connection to it.
